
Join our growing global community of over 7 million learners

Find Courses
Professor Elmore

- Professor of Educational Leadership at Harvard Graduate School of Education (HGSE) since 1990
- “Leaders of Learning” course extends his theory worldwide
Course Design

1. Modes of Learning
2. Modes of Organization
3. Modes of Leadership
4. Modes of Design
Learner Engagement

- Pre-course survey to determine learner’s educational philosophy
- Consistent course design
Other leaders of learning contribute their input.

MEET THE VOICES

Throughout Leaders of Learning, we’ll hear what these current leaders have to say about how and why they became leaders, what they think about learning, and what they think the future of learning will look like.

Andrés Alonso

Andrés Alonso is a Professor of Practice at the Harvard Graduate School of Education. For six years, Alonso served as the CEO of Baltimore City public schools. Originally a corporate lawyer in New York City, Alonso left the law to become a special education teacher, and spent a dozen years in the Newark, NJ school system. He also worked for the New York City Department of Education as Deputy Chancellor for Teaching and Learning and Chief of Staff for Teaching and Learning.

Michael Goodwin

Michael Goodwin is the founder of Rivers and Revolutions, a school within a school at Concord-Carlisle High School in Concord, MA. He is also the founder of the Concord River Institute, which engages educators in creating learning communities following the Rivers and Revolutions model. Goodwin has taught in a variety of high schools, public and private, rural and urban, and also serves as the academic director for the Great Books Summer Program.
Leaders of Learning

Explore and understand your own theories of learning and leadership. Gain the tools to imagine and build the future of learning.
Testimonial
Outcomes

Student
• Exposure to field of education
• Introduction to the Harvard Education School

Professor
• Increased the need for more academic rigor
• Expanded audience for his framework
Leaders of Learning

Always pass on what you have learned.
– Yoda